

Freedom of Information Act 2000

DERBYSHIRE POLICE AUTHORITY PUBLICATION SCHEME

Part One

Introduction

Derbyshire Police Authority Publication Scheme

Freedom of Information Act 2000

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 ("FOI Act") received Royal Assent on 30 November 2000. It gives a general right of access to all types of recorded information held by public authorities, sets out exemptions from that right and places a number of obligations on public authorities. A 'public authority' is defined in the Act, and includes (but is not restricted to) central and local government, non-departmental public bodies, the police, the health service and schools, colleges and universities. Any person who makes a request to a public authority for information must be informed whether the public authority holds that information and, subject to exemptions, supplied with that information.

Your rights and our responsibilities

Under the FOI Act all Police Authorities including Derbyshire Police Authority must have a Publication Scheme setting out the information we routinely make publicly available. Our scheme must be approved by the Information Commissioner and we have to review the scheme from time to time. In adopting (or reviewing) our Publication Scheme, we are required to have regard to the public interest in:

- allowing public access to information we hold; and
- publishing reasons for the decisions we make.

Our publication scheme must:

- set out the classes of information which we publish or intend to publish;
- say how we will publish the information in each class; and
- say if we will provide the information free or charge for it.

The purpose of our Publication Scheme is to let you know what information is readily available from us without your needing to ask us for it. By readily available we mean that the information is available on our website; can be obtained from us if you request it by letter, e-mail or telephone call; can be purchased from us; or can be found in a local library.

The FOI Act also gives you a right of access to recorded information held by public authorities, subject to certain exemptions.

The FOI Act applies to the vast majority of public authorities, including Derbyshire Police Authority. If you ask us for information we are required to:

- let you know in writing whether we hold information you have asked for; and
- provide to you the information we do hold within 20 working days, unless it is subject to an exemption.

We also have a duty to provide advice or assistance to you or anyone seeking information (for example in order to explain what is readily available or to clarify what is wanted).

Please note that for the purposes of the FOI Act Derbyshire Constabulary is a separate organisation to Derbyshire Police Authority and therefore we may suggest directing your request to the Constabulary if this is likely to provide a more helpful response.

Derbyshire Police Authority Copyright Material

For material where we own the copyright, it can be reproduced free of charge in any format or medium for research, private study or for internal circulation within an organisation. This is subject to the material being reproduced accurately and not being used in a misleading context. Where material is being republished or copied to others, the source of the material must be identified and our copyright acknowledged. The Derbyshire Police Authority logo is also copyrighted and may not be reproduced other than as it appears on copied material.

Other Copyrighted Material

Some material we include in our Scheme may be the copyright of a third party. Our rights to hold and use such material do not extend to others. You must obtain authorisation from the copyright holder(s) concerned if you wish to copy or reproduce such material.

Requests for Personal Information

Under the Data Protection Act 1998, you already have a statutory right to have access to personal data we hold about you on computer or in a structured manual file (i.e. on paper). You also have the right to expect us, as the data controller, to ensure that data is:

- processed fairly and lawfully
- obtained for specific and lawful purposes
- adequate, relevant and not excessive
- accurate and where necessary kept up to date

- not kept for longer than is necessary
- processed in accordance with the rights of the data subject
- kept secure
- not transferred abroad unless to countries with adequate data protection laws.

For the purposes of the 1998 Act, “personal data” is information that relates to a living identifiable person. The person or organisation who controls the purpose and manner in which data is processed is the “data controller”. More information on the Data Protection Act can be found on Data Protection and Freedom of Information Advice - ICO (the Information Commissioner’s website) or from the address given below.

Information where Derbyshire Police Authority is the Data Controller

Where we are the data controller, you are entitled to be told whether we hold data about you, and if we do:

- to be given a description of the data in question
- to be told for what purposes the data is processed
- to be told the recipients, or classes of recipients, to whom the data is or may be disclosed

You are also entitled to a copy of the information with any unintelligible terms, acronyms or codes explained. You will also be given any information available to us on the source of the data. The data will be in its latest form.

If you wish to apply for access to your personal data, known as “a subject access request”, you should write to us at the above address. A fee of £10 must accompany your request together with proof of your identity. We also need to be supplied with the details needed to locate the information you seek. A request for access to personal data will be dealt with promptly and in any event within 40 days of receipt of the request and payment of the fee.

If you consider that a request by you for access to your personal data has not been dealt with properly, you may:

- write to us at the above address seeking resolution of your complaint.
- write to the Information Commissioner, who is appointed to consider such complaints at:

Office of the Information Commissioner
Wycliffe House
Water Lane
Wilmslow
Cheshire
SK9 5AF

The Information Commissioner is empowered to assess whether there has been a failure to comply with the 1998 Act. The Commissioner can issue enforcement proceedings if satisfied that there has been a contravention of the data protection principles. The Commissioner can also recommend that you apply to court alleging a failure to comply with the subject access provisions of the 1998 Act. The court may make an order requiring compliance with those provisions and may also award compensation for any damages you have suffered as well as any associated distress.

Information where Derbyshire Police Authority is not the “Data Controller”

In many cases, it is the police and not the police authority who hold personal information. The Police National Computer includes information on prosecutions, convictions and cautions. Chief Officers of Police are the “data controllers” for this information and not Derbyshire Police Authority.

You have the right to be told by a Chief Officer whether any information is held about you on the Police National Computer and a right to a copy of that information. The Chief Officer will give that information if he is satisfied as to your identity and on payment of a fee of £10. The Chief Officer may deny access to this information where the information is held for the prevention or detection of crime or for the apprehension or prosecution of offenders and where release of the information would be likely to be prejudicial to any of these purposes.

Police forces provide a form to simplify the exercise of your subject access rights to PNC information. In the case of Derbyshire Police you should contact: -

General Information about Derbyshire Police Authority

Derbyshire Police Authority Role and Responsibilities

The Derbyshire Police Authority is an independent body made up of local people. It is our job to ensure that there is an efficient and effective police force for Derbyshire and to make sure that the Chief Constable and force are accountable to you in carrying out their responsibilities and serving our communities.

The Derbyshire Police Authority sets the strategic direction for policing in Derbyshire and holds the Chief Constable to account for the policing service delivered. Delivery of local policing services is the job of the Chief Constable.

We have a number of statutory duties and responsibilities. The main ones are to

- secure an efficient and effective local police force
- hold the police budget and allocate resources
- appoint (and dismiss, if necessary) the chief constable and senior police officers
- consult widely with local people about the policing of their area
- set local policing priorities and targets for achievement
- monitor what the police do and how well they perform against the targets set by the authority
- publish a rolling three year plan which tells local people what they can expect from their police service and report on achievements every year
- make sure local people get value for money from their local police
- oversee complaints against the police and discipline senior officers

It might help you to know that police operations are the responsibility of the Chief Constable and force and information on individuals is more likely to be held by the police than the police authority.
